At the invitation of the Principal, Donna Smith, Chamber Question Time returned to a packed main hall at Folkestone College to hear a panel of company owners and Chief Executives respond to questions from ambitious students keen to learn more about the realities of business today. Subjects covered included climate change, house prices, the perfect worker and telling the truth. Asking the questions were Alexia Simon, Jordan Pizey, Rebecca Roberts Richardson, Jack Finley, Nathan Hancock, Natalie Thornley, Isaac Townsend and Angel Howlett. Under the chairmanship of Chamber Chief Executive David Foley, the session was brought to a close after one hour with all parties keen to meet again to discuss local employment opportunities and promote those vital links between the classroom and the workplace.
